

EVENTS AT WASHINGTON
BANTAM REGT. PLANNED

WASHINGTON, July 14.—"Mobilize the Movies" seems likely to become a war cry. President Wilson has written William A. Brady, the movie king, to organize a motion picture for the government which can be used not only to aid in enlightening recruits but also to show them the grim side of army life, but which will also become a regular feature of camp life as an entertainment. There will be motion pictures shown at all the cantonments this summer where 40,000 young men are in training. Some of the pictures will be entirely for amusement, others will be of a patriotic character with short talks illustrating them. And as the officials of the war department are negotiating with some of the best theatrical managers in the country, there is likely to be added to the movies a bit of vaudeville and regular old-time comedies, too. It must not be understood that the government proposes to be satisfied with any barn-storming propositions. The shows will be of the best and provision is being made at the camps for the suitable staging of the plays and pictures. "It is a real need that we are providing for," said one of the war department officials a day or two ago. "The men cannot be well trained and kept in good condition if they think and talk nothing but war. They need wholesome, clean amusement after the day's work is done, and we propose to provide it for them." In his letter to Mr. Brady, the president said: "It is in my mind to give the measure official recognition. And as the president is one of the most inveterate movie vandeville fans in Washington he gave his sympathy and aid very readily. Scarcely a night passes that the president and son do not see a box at one of the leading movie and vaudeville theatres. With them it is as regular a pastime as their daily morning game of golf."

Adjournment of Congress

Another change in the legislative program puts off the approximate date of adjournment. The bill cannot be voted on in the senate until the afternoon of July 21. It must then go to the house for reconsideration and adjournment to conference and it will be from the first to the last of August before it gets into shape and is signed by the president, even at high pressure speed. What the bill will be when completed is just as much a matter of speculation as it was when such a measure was first suggested to congress. To be sure the senate has passed the liquor section, but even that is subject to revision if a substitute bill is agreed upon.

The committee on agriculture is said to strongly favor the substitute measure offered by Senator Gore, chairman. That it will command enough votes to put through when the vote is taken, is by no means likely, although no one is bold enough to hazard a guess of what its fate will be. The Gore substitute puts the liquor question practically into the hands of the president with the exception of the prohibition of the manufacture of distilled spirits, but it eliminates many of the other complicating sections. It is said by administration senators that the president wants coal, steel and wheat among the prohibited stuffs, but does not want cotton included. There is no disputing the fact that the enemies of prohibition have applauded the attempt to load down the bill with unwieldy amendments in the hope that it would be defeated in such a form. But the president has not yet taken an open hand in directing its passage. When he does, it is expected that the bill will go whirling and that it will moreover whirl in whatever direction may indicate. Congress has thus far obeyed the dictates of the president in all war measures and is not likely to balk over the food bill, however much it may lag in enacting it. The revenue bill will not be reconsidered until the food bill has passed. For if the latter is cut down to food conservation alone, it might not be necessary to alter the revenue bill to any marked degree.

Militant Suffragettes have had a fine time this week being arrested and thrust in jail. They seem to have established a press bureau through which advance notice of the hour of intended militant parades was made known. They called up the chief of police and the leading newspapers of the city, and even phoned a movie man to be on hand to picture the arrest. The struggle was short, but when the 25 women had hauled in by the bluecoats reached the police court, Mrs. Hill of Connecticut took the reins into her own hands. When the judge offered to assign them counsel, Mrs. Hill said: "We know our own case. We don't want counsel. We will do the defending myself." And she did it thoroughly, to the amusement of the court, the attendants and the motley crowd of whites and negroes who filled the room to suffocation. Mrs. Weed leaned confidentially on the judge's desk, and told him how she had judged the situation. Then she turned her face to the crowded room and began her defense of militancy and militants, intermingled with instructions to the judge "on the side." But the militants were fined $25 each, just the same.

The beautiful Cameron house, which has been the home of the militant suffragists for a year, is to be abandoned under instructions of its owners, and the ladies must now seek new quarters. The old Cameron house has a noted past as the house of some of Washington's most distinguished statesmen. The past year its walls have rung with militant cries and been covered with socialistic banners. But from now on it is expected to be restored to its old-time quiet and dignity. It is next door to the aristocratic and exclusive Cosmos club, and the "doin's" of the militant ladies have long been a thorn in the flesh of their conservative neighbors just across the green hedge.

State and County Fairs
"Fairs ain't what they used to be," said the committee from all parts of the country, who were here this week to make suggestions for the improvement of the state and county fairs to be held this fall. Instead of side shows of fat ladies and elastic skinned gentlemen, who obligingly wind their nose and chin around their noses while you look on in amazement, you will find young women demonstrating how to cook corn pone and save waste. A committee representing the American Association of Fairs and Expositions have pledged their full cooperation to Mr. Hoover and have arranged with him for special demonstration work all over the country. Fifty positions have already voluntarily enlisted in the demonstration to save waste campaign.

Nobody Knew Him
"Doesn't anyone here recognize the United States attorney general?" asked that gentleman in an anxious tone a few days ago, when he was held up at the war department by the guard at the door who demanded a permit to enter. But the crowd just smiled knowingly, and failed to "recognize" for it has grown accustomed to take claims and card only is strictly enforced. "Sorry, sir," said the guard, politely, "you may be all right, but I can't take your word."

Several weeks ago the suggestion was made that many men of military service who are a trifle undisciplined, but would not only make good soldiers but were anxious to enlist. The surgeon general recommended a "Bantam" regiment. The suggestion was approved by the secretary of war and now the minimum weight has been reduced from 120 to 110 pounds and the height from 5 feet 4 inches to 5 feet 1 inch, so men who all other requirements can now be enlisted if coming within the above measurements.

Had Never Seen Salt Water
Among the visitors to Lowell yesterday was an Elk from Chicago who had never before seen salt water. He told his experience in an amusing manner. Upon arriving at Revere and seeing the throngs in the water enjoying themselves he couldn't get into a bathing suit fast enough. Getting out upon the beach, he dashed boldly into the surf. In an instant he emitted a wild cry that brought life-guards and a crowd of bathers around him. They carried him ashore and when he had recovered his wind he gasped:

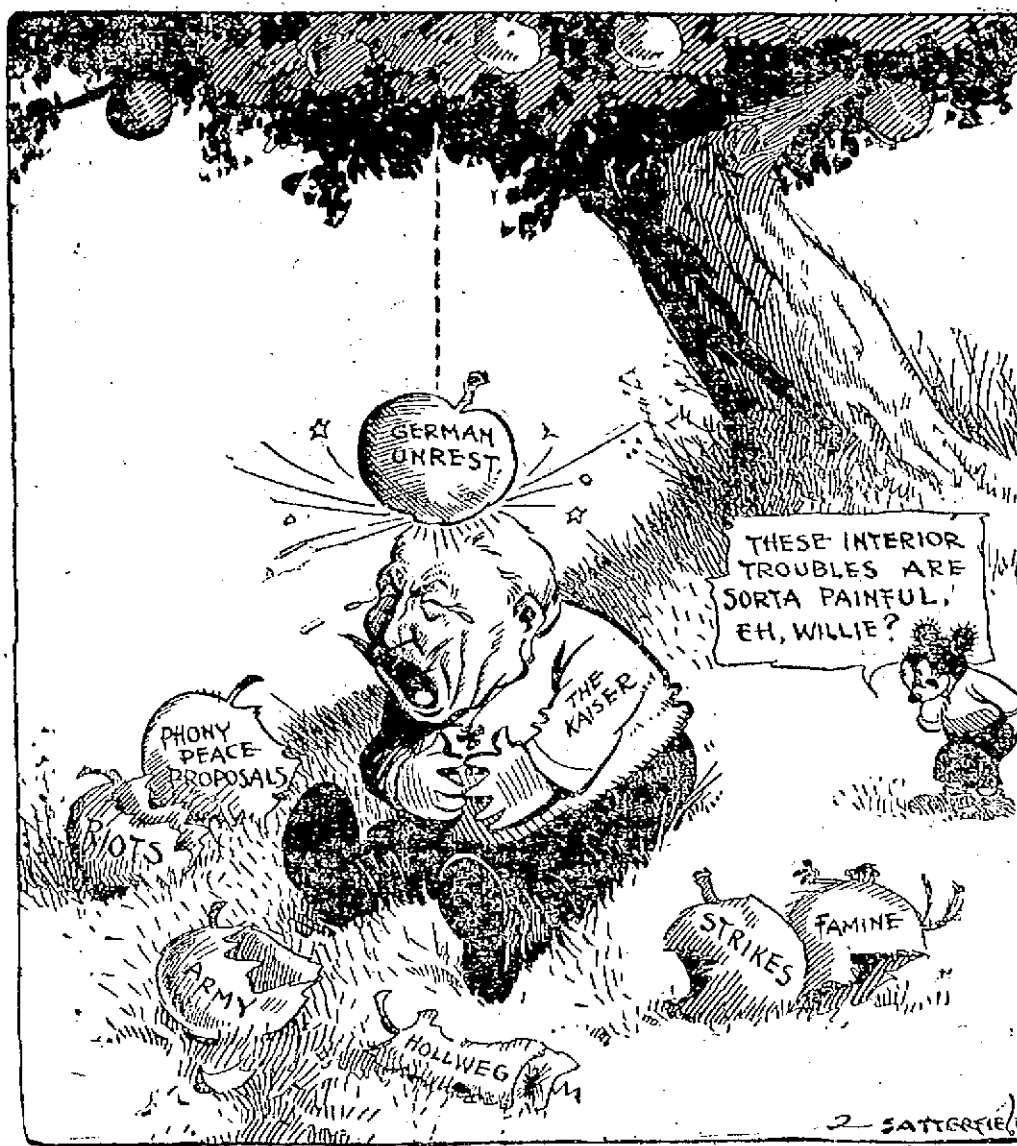

"Why didn't you tell me it was so cold?"

He couldn't understand how so many men and women could willingly disport for hours in water of such a frigid temperature and calling to their friends ashore. "Come on in, the water's fine," the Chicago man was accustomed to bathing in fresh water, the temperature of which rises with the heat of the day.

THE SPELLBINDER

Yesterday was a big day for Lowell lodge of Elks; and also a big day for Lowell for over 600 strangers, many of them men of prominence in far away sections of the country, came here. Inspected our waterway resources, our mills and our textile school and were royally entertained into the bargain. A more enthusiastic and better pleased crowd of visitors for the day was not had.

The day was hot and the attorney general in a hurry, but he had to wait on the outskirts until word was telephoned to the secretary of war that the attorney general is here and wants to see you. Brought back an apologetic messenger in a huff to usher the head of the judiciary department to the secretary's office.

"Men and women," began Miss Jeanette Harkin, congresswoman from Montana. Then she put her hands in the two pockets of her white satin sport skirt and addressed the audience which had gathered to hear her. No polite gentlemen and ladies for her. She doesn't propose to please women on a pedestal, but desires to emphasize their equality by dealing with them in very plain terms.

BENNY HAD OLD NERO UP IN THE AIR

GARDNER TELLS YOU
WHAT TO DO

Special to The Sun

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 14.—Did you register for the selective army? If so, you have a number of things still to do, and to do at once.

Remember, it is up to you, do not wait for the mails to bring you any notice or directions.

What exemption district do you live in? If you do not know, find out.

Where does your exemption board have its office? Go there and ask for copies of blanks and forms. You have some to fill out.

What is your number? Go to the board's office and find out. Every name must have a number, and as soon as the board has done its job of numbering, you will be able to find out what your number is.

If the board has not yet completed the numbering, find out when they will, and go to see them again. Then watch the papers for news from Washington as to the "drawing." The numbers are all to be put in a wheel or into something to be drawn by lot. In this lottery your number will either be drawn or not drawn; then the lucky automaton will be posted at the headquarters of the board and published in The Sun. Anyway, it is up to you to watch the bulletin board or to read your paper and find out whether your number has been drawn.

You may get a letter notifying you that you are drawn, but do not wait for the letter; watch the bulletin board and the newspaper.

Your local board will next examine all those whose numbers are drawn, to determine whether they are physically fit.

You must present yourself for this examination, whether you think you are fit or not; even if you have only one leg, do not neglect to present yourself. You are not excused until you have been examined and the board gives you completing over the manner in which the most recent purchases of military uniforms were made. They state that the charter requires that bids should be called for by the purchasing agent as well as the secretary of the board.

National cars. There is talk on the street of injunction proceedings but if the city becomes involved in much more litigation it will become necessary to enlarge the city solicitor's office.

The Mayor Was Busy
There was much comment about the non-appearance of Mayor O'Donnell in yesterday's auto parade. His Honor being a member of Lowell lodge. Mayor O'Donnell was on the reception committee and was one of the earliest arrivals at the depot. Upon learning that there weren't autos enough to accommodate all of the visitors his Honor gave up his own car and went to the depot in a special electric car and then went to the Elks' room where he was kept busy for the remainder of the day.

Mr. Attenau's Prediction
Mr. F. E. Attenau, the gentleman who originated the Elks Textile day, who requested that the visit to the Lowell Textile day be held at the Lowell Textile day, is a student of the Lowell Textile day. He is a student of the Lowell Textile day. He is a student of the Lowell Textile day.

DON'T WORRY ABOUT YOUR BOY
IN CAMP; CLEANLINESS
WILL RULE

BY GILSON GARDNER
When your boy, Mr. and Mrs. Neighbor, chosen in the first citizen army, goes to the cantonment city for his training as a soldier you need not lie awake nights worrying about his safety.

Leave that to Secretary of War Baker, a trustworthy man who appreciates boys, for he has taken the responsibility on his own shoulders. The physical and moral health of the forces sent to be selected must be safeguarded in every way, scientifically and rigidly.

That, in a nutshell, is the war secretary's order, and he will make it his personal business to see that the order becomes the law.

In effect he has adopted the slogan of "haste not, waste not" in caring for that most precious of national resources, American manhood. That the cantonment camps be right, rather than that they be speedily available is his first concern.

No physical virtues, no moral virtues will prey on your sons.

"There must be no repetition of Camp Alger typhoid or embalmbed beef scandals," said the secretary in giving directions. "In the food the men be called until every detail affecting their comfort and health has been worked out."

The water is to be scientifically tested and guarded by experts. Inspectors, are looking after the drainage and sewage. Several times the plans have been changed under military department orders. Air, light and heat in the winter, have been considered with scientific accuracy. Commissary stores including clothing and food, will be on hand before the men are called.

The food will be subject to the most rigid inspection, and if this army of 837,000 is not the healthiest body of men in the world, it will be a written certificate to that effect. The same is true as to exemption for other causes. It is up to you.

You may be a postal clerk or an employee in an arsenal, but you are not exempted until you have set out these facts on one of the official forms and had it made into an affidavit before a notary public and then presented this affidavit to the exemption board. Those entitled under the law to exemption, must go through the same forms as those seeking exemption on the facts.

If you have a dependent mother, this fact must be set out on one of the official forms, and sworn to and the affidavit filed within seven days after you are called before the board. If proof is required, you may have to get an affidavit of two neighbors, householders, and file this with the board within the next ten days following the first seven days.

There will be a land office business in issuing to affidavits. The notary public will make more money than ever before.

What will happen after you have filed your claim for exemption? Your various affidavits will be determined by the exemption board. After all these affidavits have the say—at least the first say, the second say is in the hands of the appeal board, which is another story.

If you seek exemption on the ground of actual physical disability, you must go to the district appeal board. Candidates for this new citizen army, who are anxious to go to the front, and have no home ties which should not be broken, need only present themselves for the physical examination. If they are passed, their names will go into the records as accepted rookies and in due time they will be called to live in one of the cantonment cities where their first training will be received.

MARY GARDEN ASKS PERMISSION TO DO A PATRIOTIC PLAY

Mary Garden, internationally famous operatic prima donna and star of Goldwyn pictures, having been informed by cable of the Goldwyn offer to the United States government of its plays and players for the recreational activities of our soldiers in France and learning of the implied acceptance by Secretary of War Newton D. Baker, has cabled Samuel Goldwyn, president of Goldwyn pictures from Paris requesting that her second play be of a patriotic type suitable to inspire the United States soldiers who will later be in France. Her cable follows: "I have learned your splendid offer to war office. Can't I help? After 'this I should like to do patriotic play."

It is possible that by the near future a special request to the near future of America will be sent from the Goldwyn executive office asking for plays of the type Miss Garden suggests. It will be recalled that the decision to picture "The Iron Woman" had asked Goldwyn picture patrons of America in what play they should first like to see the famous operatic star and it is fitting that her second production for the American public, as well as the soldiers, should be one of her own choosing. Until the receipt of Miss Garden's cable, tentative plans had been laid for her second production to star her in "The Juggler of Notre Dame," which had been the second choice of the American picture-going public when its opinion was solicited. By instinct and training no actress in America is better suited to play the leading role in a national patriotic drama than Mary Garden. Of all distinguished artists of her kind she has been the most typically American in temperament. Much of her life has been spent in Chicago, where she absorbed the broad spirit of the central west that is so distinctively American, and Miss Garden on more than one occasion, has taken the opportunity to display her deep-rooted nationalism.

Later the talented couple found each other again at the University of Chicago where both were studying English literature and drama. The acquaintance which had begun in the little Japanese theatre in the orient reached its climax in the studios of the Paramount pictures where the two worked together in many productions, and also resumed their study of the English language. It is said that Miss Aoki has become so proficient in the English language that she has almost forgotten her own, while her husband is well known as a translator of many of the most famous English classics into Japanese.

MARGUERITE CLARK IN THE HANDS OF A PRIZE-FIGHTER

The cry for realism in the staging of photoplay productions has its remarkable dilemmas for the stars and for motion picture directors. Fancy the inward feelings with which Marguerite Clark and Director Joseph Kaufman read that portion of the script of Pinoro's "The Amazons" which details a boxing bout between two of the girls in the story, when they began to make preliminary studies for the staging of her forthcoming picture. Disminutive Miss Clark is most peaceful by nature and has never participated in fistful adventures even in her school days, though that is considered permissible in some of the best families. She has never even seen a prize fight, though that is still more permissible in some of the best families.

So Jack Denning, well known prize fighter, was engaged to coach Miss Clark. The consequent realism which is injected into this part of the action is one of the funniest screen episodes imaginable. Pictures Marguerite Clark seizing the ropes in her corner of the ring and stamping her feet for at the world like Jess Willard preparing to pound some other giant to a pulp. Imagine Miss Clark landing hooks and jabs, swings and uppercuts with neatness and precision upon the countenance of her adversary—and stopping a few fast ones with her adorable Clark nose itself. There are a hundred and one little touches to these scenes at which everyone who has ever seen a boxing match will howl with glee.

Director Kaufman insisted that the take as long as he needed in perfecting the pugilistic episodes, after Miss Clark had spent several days getting the stiffness out of her arms as a result of the first day's work with the gloves. As a result, Lowell is going to show some of the fastest first work that it has ever seen since Douglas Fairbanks first broke loose, when "The Amazons" is released in this city.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

Dear old "Mother Maurice" plays one of the most sympathetic roles in her career, as a devoted mother to a scapegrace son in "The Price of Fame," the new Blue Ribbon feature, which will be shown at the B. F. Keith theatre tomorrow afternoon and evening. Her faith is finally realized in this story for the black sheep of the family turned out to be true blue. She is sure to get tears from her audience, as she stands by her window on Thanksgiving Day, while she waits for her boy to return to the shelter of his old home. Always an ideal mother, who delights the little children with her acting in an excellent characterization in this feature, in which Marc MacDermott and Naomi Childers have the principal parts. Mrs. Maurice is 72 years young, she only expresses it, numerous friends will be glad to know that she expects to remain in pictures just as long as she possibly can.

This is the big feature of a bill which has been very carefully picked for tomorrow. On Monday, and continuing through the first half of the week, Ethel Barrymore will be seen in "The Greatest Power." Eve-act Metro feature, and Anita Stewart will appear in "Clover's Rebellion," a Vitagraph picture. The latter half of the week Mary Anderson and Antonio Moreno will be presented in "The Magnificent Menditor" and Frances Nel-

APPEARING IN "THE PRIMROSE RING" AT THE MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE ON THE NEXT THREE DAYS

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

The continuous Sunday concert at the cool Merrimack Square theatre Sunday afternoon and evening promises to be one of rare entertainment, judging from the elaborate program of well selected photoplays which has been arranged by the management. The feature attraction will be "Skinner's Bubble" in which is starred, among others, Bryant Washburn. The play tells of a business dealing in New York. It narrates what happened in a colossal money-making scheme which was a bluff from start to finish. The action of the play is swift, the acting excellent and the theme exceptionally entertaining and human, true in its portrayal and her playing is so realistic that it finds a straight road to the hearts of her audiences. "The Primrose Ring," with Mae Murray, is the story of the love of a winsome nurse, who delights the little children with fairy tales for a doctor. Other plays will also be shown on this first half of the week bill.

ROYAL THEATRE

Sunday's double program at the Royal theatre brings two fine pictures. "The Money Gods," in five parts, and Ralph Herz in the exciting Selig offering, "The Mystery of Number 47." Both these pictures tell a good story, while the acting is above the ordinary. "The Money Gods" deals with capitalism, the subject is quite up to date, taking in consideration the enormous fortunes won on the public in these troublous times of so-called "war prices," which in reality is only a poor excuse for money lads to squelch the public. "The Mystery of Number 47" offering Ralph Herz and a splendid cast of Selig players in an exciting comedy drama which is entirely different from the general run of photoplays. Here is a well known stage player and is sure to make himself a name in the pictures. A Mutt and Jeff cartoon, the Selig famous Micky film and other good pictures will complete this big Sunday show.

JEWEL THEATRE

In offering H. B. Warner in "The Lost Paradise," Paramount gives a rarely intelligent player a good opportunity. Mr. Warner's dramatic ability is not of the doubtful class. He plays any role with real artistry, and never resorts to cheap camera tricks like most of these strictly "movie" heroes, who bank on their early locks and cute little suits to "get by." Mr. Warner will be seen Sunday at the Jewel in this magnificent Paramount picture, one of his many good roles. The story of "Lost Paradise" is dramatic, intense and highly interesting, with just that dash of heart interest to make it popular. And as far as supporting players, the cast is flawless and exceptionally clever, while the producers have made of this play one of the very few real picture dramas worth while. The Universal Weekly and other pictures will complete a fine Sunday show at the Jewel.

Monday and Tuesday's attraction at the Jewel is "The Isle of Desire," a William Fox picture presenting George Walsh in the leading role. Mr. Walsh enjoys the distinction of being Douglas Fairbanks' rival. Fairbanks is without doubt the one big surprise offered film last year, but they say George is a comer and a mighty fine boy. Here's a chance to judge his work, for this is one cooking picture and the cast and story are excellent. An episode of the Monday and Tuesday's double offering is "Spiller of Souls," an Ivan Abramson drama, a sociological theme cleverly handled with capable actors and producers. And "The Lights of New York," a Vitagraph feature, with Leah Baird and star Vitagraph cast. "The Lights of New York" is a play of the upper and lower crust of New York. The story brings you from the big city's lowest dives to the finest mansions in the country. The story of a girl's dissatisfaction, and her adventures in trying to find happiness are the theme. We see a clever crook from the slums pose as a man of the world and almost marry one of society's prettiest flowers. But—like all movies—everything turns out all right and happiness reigns for all. Other photoplays will also be shown these two days.

IRITA JOLIVET and ANDERSON RANDOLPH in "ONE LAW FOR BOTH" at the OWL THEATRE

"ONE LAW FOR BOTH"

"One Law For Both," the latest film drama produced by Ivan Abramson, will open at the Owl theatre, on Monday for a run of one solid week. This production is the latest picture made by Mr. Abramson since the release of his extraordinary success, "Enlighten Thy Daughter," which enjoyed such an extended run at the Park theatre, in New York City. As in the case of "Enlighten Thy Daughter," Mr. Abramson not only personally directed the production of "One Law For Both," but also conceived the theme and wrote the scenario.

The theme of the production is particularly timely, in view of the fact that part of the story is located in Russia—the Russia before the revolution. The characters in it are the counterparts of these men and women who accomplished the freedom of the newest democracy. Throughout the story of "One Law For Both" there runs that underlying thread of realism and almost brutal frankness that seems to be the heritage of the Russian author. The tendency to face conditions squarely and the refusal to temporize when considering vital conditions—the outstanding features of the Russian school of authors and playwrights—are clearly to be seen in the newest Abramson production. The same force that has exercised such an influence on contemporary American literature—the influence of Tolstoy and Turgenev on the advanced literary thought in this country—is transferred to the screen by Ivan Abramson, who is a Russian. He has taken the motion picture with its limitless appeal, for his medium of expression.

The production is not merely a plea for the equal consideration of the two sexes. It reaches into the recesses of social and economic conditions that obtained in Russia, and demands one similar law for the peasant and the nobleman. The author-director took the question of equality in its broadest sense, considering it in its application to economic and political conditions, and transferring the locale of the story to our own country, draws by inference, severely and exceedingly interesting comparisons.

The heroine of the picture, Rita Jolivet, a young noblewoman, is a new type to the American theatregoer. Hitherto, the Russian revolutionist has been pictured as a stern, unflinching personage, carrying a bomb under his arm, gazing furtively over his shoulder. The role of Rita Jolivet, however, is that of a woman who has achieved the liberation of the great empire in Europe, the intelligent student class, who made the utmost sacrifices for the freedom of their country, are seldom depicted on either the stage or the screen. In "One Law For Both" the author drew on his own personal knowledge of conditions and types, and the characters in the production may safely be assumed to be real.

The story opens in Russia, where the workings of a real revolutionary society is laid bare. Secret service spies, betrayals, the workings of the late monk Rasputin, the activities of the unscrupulous government officials, and the thousand things that seem the workings of a romanticist's mind, but which are actually the land of the Little White Father, are portrayed in this most interesting of photodramas.

A cast of unusual strength, including Rita Jolivet, James Morrison, Leah Baird, Vincent Serrano, Paul Campbell, Pedro de Cordoba, Margaret Loomis, and Halma Arnold portrays the leading parts.

France's authentic pictures of American troops on French soil. Friday and Saturday, Charles Chaplin in his latest Mutual release, "The Immigrant."

OWL THEATRE

A big double feature program has been arranged for the Sunday concert at the Owl. The program will be seen at the Essanay feature, "Skinner's Dress Suit," a play which is down to earth, a play which is a study in the life of a dress suit. Another big feature which abounds in pretty and pathetic scenes is "Liberty Hall," starring Edna Flugrath and an all star cast. Many other plays will be shown at the Sunday concert, they include the Mutual News which pictures all the interesting facts of the day.

THEATRICAL NOTES

Margaret Loomis, of the Lasky company, presented her noted Nautch dance at the recent dinner-dances held at Levy's Tavern in Watts for the mess-fund of Company B, Corps of Engineers. Prince Troubetskii, a portrait artist of note, was one of the guests present, and after Miss Loomis' dance, sought an introduction to her, requesting that he be allowed to paint her in her picturesque Nautch costume.

Crane Wilbur will have Lorimer Johnstone for his director in the fourth of his series of one features, to be released on the Art Dramas program.

Bessie Love, exhausted from strenuous hours and strenuous scenes in the making of the Irish picture, she is making out at the Triangle-Culver City Studios, succumbed to the exhaustion one afternoon last week. Production was stopped, Bessie was carried out to her car, tenderly placed in the back seat in the care of an attendant and the driver was told to go very carefully. At that moment, a thin, small voice piped up from the back seat, "Let's go." Director Walter Miller sighed with relief as he announced "Our Bessie is going to be all right."

AUTOMOBILE QUESTION BOX

Motoring Department, The Sun.—The following are four questions I would like you to answer in your motor column. Please explain fully as possible. (1) What would cause a motor to overheat when water in the cooling system has boiled over and the car is running with an over-heated motor? (2) To what conditions (both while running and otherwise) is due the excessive heat that causes a motor to overheat? (3) What provision can be made to prevent a motor from being over-heated? (4) Which is the best cooling system for an auto motor, and why? Thanking you in advance, I am,
A. H. McF.

Ans.—(1) The first effect is to burn up the oil, causing a noticeable loss of power. If continued the pistons and cylinders will be scored and finally one or more pistons will seize. (2) The excessive heat is due to the fact that the motor is making more heat than the cooling system can remove. Due to crowding motor too much or to failure of some part of the cooling system. (3) For preventing overheating keep radiator filled, prevent leaks, keep fan belt tight, see if water is flowing in radiator, do not race engine, keep spark advanced, run on high gear as much as possible. There is no danger of overcooling in the summer time, but part of the radiator should be covered in the winter. (4) There seems to be very little choice between systems. The pump system is more positive, but the thermo-siphon system has less mechanism.

Motoring Department, The Sun.—I have a five-passenger car and I notice of late that when a certain spot on the front wheels touches the ground it squeaks or makes some other noise. Kindly advise me as to the cause and how to remedy it.
D. W.

Ans.—If the spot is near the valve opening in the tire it may be some air escaping or the weight of the car comes on that part of the tire. If otherwise, it must be something touching the tire on wheel as it revolves. Push car ahead and see if speedometer cable or other part touches. Perhaps the wedges of demountable rim needs replacing.

Motoring Department, The Sun.—Please let me know how I can loosen the pistons in my motor, as they are stuck. The motor overheated, and all the water leaked out. I stopped it and found I could not start it again as the pistons would not move.
M. S. B.

Ans.—Four half a teaspoonful of kerosene into each cylinder. Let it soak for 15 minutes and try to start it with starting handle and starter together. Or have the car pushed and let in the clutch suddenly with gears in high speed. In case a motor is overheated the spark plugs should be removed and the engine cranked by means of the starter to cool the pistons before the cold water is poured in.

Motoring Department, The Sun.—I look the wire off my generator, but failed to mark them. How can I tell which is the positive and which the negative wire?
G. M. R.

Ans.—Run engine so that generator will produce current. Place end of wire in a glass of water with a little salt or soda in it. The wire giving off bubbles is the negative wire. Be careful to connect so that current flows the positive of generator will enter positive of battery.

Motoring Department, The Sun.—I am considering current. Please explain drawing water from the water circulation on my car. What effect would a solution of alcohol up to 40 per cent, to 50 per cent, alcohol, as in some cases for aerodynamic duty, will have the advantage of being assured of duty ashore whenever the ship is in port. Its work will be similar to that in the army despatch rider. He will be called upon to deliver important documents, to handle messenger work, scouting and other details ashore, where rapid service is the prime requirement.

Ans.—Alcohol is frequently used for removing carbon, so that its presence would be an advantage. It could not possibly do any harm to the engine. The admission of steam from the radiator to the inlet manifold should work out very well, provided you can control it by means of a valve.

Motoring Department, The Sun.—I have a new four-cylinder roadster, run about 400 miles. I handle it easily, but give close attention to oil and water. It heats so much at times I fear the water circulation is bad. How may I prove whether this is the case?

Ans.—When water is circulating properly the bottom of the radiator should be nearly as hot as the top. If it is not circulating properly the top will be hot, but the bottom will be cool. The engine may also be overheated by running too long on low gear, racing engine, or having spark retarded, and throttle too wide open. If you have taken proper care of them details, try cooling system would seem to be clogged. Clean out with washing soda.

Motoring Department, The Sun.—I have a five-passenger Ford car. In changing from slow to high it will jerk, and you have to close throttle and then open slowly until it picks up. It is almost impossible to start it without racing engine to get a good start on low, so as to get it to pick up on high. Will you please answer through your auto page? R. S. K.

Ans.—From your description it is evident that the high speed clutch is slipping. Remove plate on transmission cover and locate adjusting screws which are in clutch fingers. Work so as not to confuse them with bolts holding transmission together. Remove split pins, turn adjusting screws one-half turn to right and replace split pins. Try out car on a hill and adjust another half turn, if necessary. If split pins are damaged replace them with new ones as soon as possible.

Motoring Department, The Sun.—I have a four-cylinder Regal car, equipped with model I. Schebler carburetor, cylinder 4x4, and I have had a great deal of trouble with the engine knocking on wide open throttle. It will run fine and carry the car at a fifty-five to sixty mile rate on level or slight down grade on about one-third open throttle, but on opening the throttle wider it will begin to knock and slow down. I have tried a different carburetor adjustment, also adjusted the valves and tappets according to factory instructions. Retarding the spark all the way will make only a momentary difference. I have had the bearings tightened up and new piston rings inserted. The pistons are slightly loose on the wrist pins, but my repair man says it is not enough to amount to anything, besides these things would not account for the loss of power. If you can solve this problem for me I would be extremely obliged.
R. C. D.

Ans.—As you have eliminated all other causes of knocking, it would seem that your trouble is either piston slap or carbon. Doubtless you had the carbon cleaned out when overhauling the engine. Worn pistons will give a knock at certain speeds as they pass from compression to power strokes. This can only be remedied by new pistons.

VERY SIMPLE BUT EFFICIENT DEVICE USED TO TRUE OVERLAND TIRES

As an example of the thoroughness and accuracy with which even the minutest details are performed in the automobile industry no better illustration can be furnished than the inspection of tires at the factory of the Willits-Overland company. Each tire, after the wheel has been assembled, is thoroughly inspected and tested for alignment. It must be lined up evenly with the rim, before it can be placed on a chassis. The inspector mounts the wheel on a pivot, then swings a roller into place against the rim of the wheel. Alongside of this roller, pressing against the high point of the tire, he firmly holds a marker, while he revolves the wheel. Naturally he marks the spots which are in alignment, and misses the portions of the tire which require further adjusting. The defects are then quickly remedied. This test, coupled with the inspection for the alignment of both front and rear tires, is performed to insure the purchase of all Willits-Overland products with minimum wear on tires. Every wheel that leaves the Willits-Overland assembly rooms has been aligned and inspected in this manner.

Motorcycle News

"Don't sell your motorcycle, or don't hesitate to buy a new machine because you believe that you may be called to the colors," is the advice of Lieut. Frank R. Seaver, commander of the ninth division of the California naval militia, now mobilized at a federal training station. Military officials in other parts of the country reiterated the naval officer's sentiments.

"If there are any motorcycleists in my division," said Mr. Seaver, in discussing the situation, "I want them right on this battleship, with their machines on deck. We can use every motorcycle we can enlist, and all men in this special service will not only receive more pay, but they will have numerous other advantages that otherwise they could not expect to have."

"All motorcycleists detailed for duty on the battleships of the United States navy will receive a rating that will carry with it a substantial increase in pay. Fuel, oil and repairs to the machine will be supplied by the government."

"In addition to this, the naval motorcycleist, whether he is enlisted as a seaman or for aeronautic duty, will have the advantage of being assured of duty ashore whenever the ship is in port. His work will be similar to that in the army despatch rider. He will be called upon to deliver important documents, to handle messenger work, scouting and other details ashore, where rapid service is the prime requirement."

CHAUFFEUR'S AUTHORITY IMPORTANT

The question of the chauffeur's authority to bind the owner of a car for service and repair is one that should be of particular interest to garage keepers, repairmen and owners, says Leslie Childs, legal editor of American Motorist, writing in the current issue of that highly instructive and entertaining publication. Says Mr. Childs:

"The general rule is that an owner is not liable for service of this kind unless he has ordered it or caused it to be ordered. This rule, however, has some exceptions, as where a servant who, in the scope of his employment, gives the order, in which event the owner will be bound; this upon the doctrine that what one can do himself he can also do by an agent. But even in cases of this kind some nice questions of fact may arise as to the extent of the authority delegated, unless it is apparent or can be plainly established."

"It often happens that an accident will occur while the car is in the possession of the chauffeur that requires the attention of a repairman if the chauffeur is to complete the journey he is upon. In cases of this kind the chauffeur may not have the required amount of money at hand and he may not be in a position to communicate with his employer relative to charging the account."

"The repairman or garage keeper may be acquainted with the financial responsibility of the owner, but may hesitate to execute an order given by the chauffeur, through fear that the order may not be approved by the owner. In a situation of this kind a slight knowledge of the law governing the liability for repairs of the kind may prove of considerable value to the parties concerned.

"Cases of this kind seem to be divided into two classes—first, where the breakdown or damage requires repairs of a permanent and lasting character, such as the adding of new parts, or practically rebuilding; second, where only temporary repairs are required that will enable the chauffeur to continue on the immediate business in hand. Whether the repairs fall within the first or the second class will, it seems, govern the liability of the owner for the payment to the charges. The points have been passed upon by the courts in several instances, so may be considered as fairly well settled."

SOME AUTO "NEVERS"

Never run the car in the mud if a detour will permit you to escape it. Mud is the natural foe of machinery.

Never use rough cloths with which to wipe, clean or polish your car.

Never use an excess of oil or body polish. It collects dust and turns it into grit.

Never use muddy or soiled water with which to wash your car.

Never allow mud to remain on a car one moment longer than is absolutely possible.

Never allow mud, if possible, to dry on the car. Wash off immediately with cold water.

Never dig, scrape, chisel or shovel mud from the polish. It destroys the varnish and paint.

Never use force for any purpose. A weak solution of soda will cut the toughest mud and grease from the body.

Never dry the surface with soapy water on it. Rinse all soap and suds off before drying.

Never use any rough-fibered cloth. Chamols skin has a high first cost, but is cheapest in the end.

Never employ a roundabout circular rotary motion in polishing the car. A straight out, back and forth piston thrust is what should be used. Never use hot water on the car. Wash with cold water.

Never accept Tom, Dick and Harry's "sure restorer" of the original car shine and luster. Mark Twain said that everybody has a "certain cure for colds." So almost every driver and garage keeper implicitly avows his body polish to be the best for the car. Dead men tell no tales; neither does the injured finish on a car.

Rough, heavy soaps, full of alkali, also eat into the varnish and coat of the body. You will avoid this in manicuring your car by heating a gallon of water into which is stirred a pound and a half of soap. This is your stock solution of soap for the chassis, body, and other parts. It should, of course, always be applied with a soft, silky sponge, rinsed off with clean, cold water, and dried with a chamols skin.

HELPFUL HINTS

Do not neglect the universal joint because it is hard to get at. It does a terrific amount of work, and must be lubricated properly to stand the strain and also to transmit power without absorbing a great deal of it through friction. As it begins to wear the wheels run parallel.

Make sure that your front wheels are in alignment so as to have wear on the tires. A tire that is out of line is turning one way and being dragged another way. This soon wears off the tread. The front of the wheels should be slightly nearer than the back—about half an inch. This is because there is a tendency for the wheels to flare out as the car runs forward. By setting them in half an inch this tendency is offset, and the wheels run parallel.

It develops a peculiar thump, which gets worse very rapidly.

Jack up each wheel occasionally, and try the bearings by shaking or lifting the wheel. If any sign of looseness is apparent the bearing should be adjusted. If the front wheels are loose, the play may be in the axle nuts around the king bolt. So make sure where it is before attempting to adjust it.

Few people realize that a tire will decay just by standing idle and doing nothing. Occasional use is of benefit, as it keeps the particles of rubber pliable. So it is well to put your spare shoe on a wheel for a few days every month just to keep it in condition.

Try the clips that hold the ends of the spring leaves together occasionally to make sure they are not coming loose. If they loosen, the springs require a shock motion which drags in more dirt, and so makes them wear and squeak all the sooner.

Pauline Disston

PAULINE DISSTON, NOTED SOCIETY BEAUTY, TO WED HIGH SPORTSMAN

Miss Disston is to become the bride of John Wansmaker, Jr., wealthy sportsman, son of Rodman Wansmaker and grandson of John Wans-maker, millionaire merchant of Philadelphia. She is the daughter of Mrs. William Disston of New York, Newport and Philadelphia and has been one of the most beautiful and favored debutantes of society. Her grandfather, now dead, founded the famous saw and steel manufacturing plant of his name.

The recent act of the Kansas legislature raising the legal age of girls from 15 to 21 has presented a lot of puzzling possibilities to girls 19 and 20 now owning property in their own names.

IN MIDSUMMER BETTY BROWN DISCUSSES NEXT WINTER'S FASHIONS

BY BETTY BROWN

While your own old furs are reposing in cold storage, the shops tempt you to endless extravaganzas by showings of the most magnificent ermine furs.

And while fair ladies clad in bathing suits bask on sunny sands, they ponder on how many pelts it will take to trim a winter mantle.

venture to carry some coats around. Slight figures would seem weighted down by the most elegant of them.

PARIS MODELS

A perfectly marvelous evening mantle is of wine-color velvet, embroidered in gold. It has an extraordinary wide collar of gray wolf. It is also banded with fur in a herringbone effect, and it sports several immense gold tassels, one of which weights the pointed cape.

More artistic although less elaborate is another evening wrap of gorgeous burnt orange velvet. It has smocked revers of wisteria satin, with enormous collar, cuffs and footband of Australian opossum.

FUR MANTLETTE

The mantlette of fur, which has been worn this summer, will replace the shoulder cape or scarf in many a winter wardrobe. Seal and ermine make an exquisite and expensive combination. Mole skin is used for some of the most charming of these short wraps. Hudson seal for the less expensive. A garment of this style can be worn over a coat dress in the fall, and over a heavy wrap when the snow flies.

The price of fur went skyrocketing at the beginning of the war and it has not stopped yet. This has brought into the market more kinds of pelts than the average woman can name. The humble rabbit skin no longer hides as a coat lining but bravely parades as the collar on many a velvet coat.

Long and short haired pelts divide fashion's favor.

CHERRIES ARE RIPE

The cherry, Uncle Sam's original family tree, is the most cheering of all fruits. Cherries are supposed to have certain bracing or tonic properties which give them a medicinal value.

But the cherry is not to be eaten uncooked unless it is perfectly ripe. Cooking processes, however, are considered best when most simple. This is true of all the ways of canning and preserving cherries.

CHERRY SALAD Stone very ripe cherries and place a nut meat in each. Serve on lettuce with mayonnaise dressing. Garnish with whipped cream.

CHERRY BATTER PUDDING Stone three cupfuls ripe cherries, mix with 1-2 cupful sugar, drain and dredge with flour. Beat 2 eggs and mix with 1 pint milk and tablespoonful melted butter. Add 4 cupfuls flour which has been sifted with 2 teaspoonfuls baking powder and 1 teaspoonful of salt. Stir in the cherries and turn into a well greased pudding dish. Steam 3 hours. Serve with hard sauce. Individual puddings steamed in cups can be made with this batter.

DRIED CHERRIES Stone the cherries and stew with a little sugar but no water. Spread on platters and dry in a slow oven. Cook down the syrup and pour over the cherries, a little each day. Continue process until all syrup is used, drying.

fruit every time syrup is added.

CANNED CHERRIES To 5 quarts of washed cherries allow 1-2 quarts sugar and 1 cupful water. If cherries are stone, save all whole cloves, 3 dozen blades of mace, or other preferred spices. Boil 5 minutes and cool. Wash and stem but do not stone 3 quarts of fine, firm cherries. Pack into glass jars or small crocks. Strain the vinegar and pour over the fruit. Seal immediately.

PICKLED CHERRIES Heat 3 cupfuls vinegar mixed with 1-2 cupful brown sugar, 1 tablespoon whole cloves, 3 dozen blades of mace, or other preferred spices. Boil 5 minutes and cool. Wash and stem but do not stone 3 quarts of fine, firm cherries. Pack into glass jars or small crocks. Strain the vinegar and pour over the fruit. Seal immediately.

SPICED CHERRIES Stone the cherries and save the juice. Allow 3 pounds of sugar to 5 pounds of cherries. Mix one pint of vinegar with the sugar, add the cherry juice, one tablespoonful each of ground cloves and all-spice and 2 tablespoonfuls cinnamon. Boil up and add the cherries, cook 10 minutes, skimming as required. Seal hot in sterilized containers.

STYLES FOR THE STYLISH—HINTS FOR HOUSEKEEPERS—TIPS ON PRESERVING FOOD—WHAT WOMEN ARE DOING

FRENCH HEELS ARE SCORNE
BY SOCIETY AND COLLEGE GIRLS

BY BETTY BROWN

For once the society debutante and the college girl share a common opinion. Both scorn French heels except for dancing, and both just adore the new sports oxford. It is low of heel and broad of toe, modeled after a tennis shoe, and it comes in all kinds of proper shoe materials.

And always above it appears a heavy ribbed and striped silk stocking. Some of these knitted luxuries cost $15 a pair. Thin silk stockings are considered quite out of harmony with this kind of a footgear.

LADY LOOKABOUT.

When the prepayment cars were first introduced in the city, I had great pity for the conductors whose duty it was to instruct the public to have its nickel ready before boarding a car. It was hard, hard work, but the conductors were patient and long-suffering, and now nearly everyone who rides knows what prepayment means. I thought the task of those conductors was gigantic, but when the cars with limited stops were introduced, the task of the conductors of the prepayment cars faded into insignificance in comparison. Somehow, passengers of these cars refuse to be enlightened. I have heard conductors announce the stops; loudly and clearly repeat them, only to have a passenger attempt to stop the car at the next corner. These passengers are persistent. Despite the conductor's repeated assurance that the car will not stop, the passenger gets into such a fury at being carried past his street, that even against the rule, the conductor often is glad to stop the car and let the angry passenger alight. Truly some of the conductors deserve the sympathy of the public. But if their lots are hard, think of what it is like for the conductors on suburban lines when the six-cent fares go into effect. How is a conductor going to explain to an irate passenger the nice distinction between a five-cent ticket within the city limits, a six-cent cash fare beyond, and the exceptions to both? If none are so deaf as those who will not hear, then none are so dense as those who will not be taught. The tasks of street car conductors have become so involved that most of these worthy men deserve the utmost consideration of the traveling public.

Bogus Agents Busy

How quick was the naughty man who has been canvassing Boston for subscriptions to a bogus magazine, to take advantage of the food conservation interest, to ply his nefarious trade. This man has been collecting subscriptions for a magazine he represented to be the official organ of Food Director Hoover. After he had collected money at fifty cents per, it was discovered that there was no such magazine on "The Housewives Magazine." In the meantime the solicitor, his pockets bulging with fifty-cent pieces, made a safe get-away. Bogus agents have been collecting money in this city within a few days, but the victims prefer standing their loss to the publicity attendant upon reporting to the police. Despite the newspaper activity, persons of this type always seem to be able to find a field for their operations.

Bathing Suits and Beach Dresses

There is a nice distinction to be made between bathing suits and beach dresses. The former are just what the name implies;—suits to be worn while

MINE. DAISY MAZZUCHI AND HER WAR AMBULANCE

ITALY'S FIRST WOMAN AMBU-LANCE DRIVER, HERE

BY FREDERICK M. KIRBY

The only woman ambulance driver ever commissioned by the Italian government is in New York after a strenuous service at the front both in France and Italy. She is the beautiful Mme. Daisy Mazzuchi, wife of the former Italian consul, stationed at Rheims at the outbreak of the war. For the past year she has been driving her own ambulance with the Italian army at the front.

"We were living at Rheims when the Germans swept across Belgium and into France," said Mme. Mazzuchi to me at the Netherland hotel, telling the thrilling story of her work at the front. "Everything in my home was destroyed during the bombardment, but I was not in the house. I and my daughter, just 12, were busily engaged near the front line trenches helping to care for the wounded. Fortunately, I had some training in nursing and first aid work, and I did what I could, with my daughter's help. I still carry a German bullet, received while working on this front.

"I worked on, helping to care for the refugees at the French front, until Italy declared war. As the wife of an Italian consul, I believed I should work then for my husband's government. So I went to the Italian front.

"I work 15 hours a day in my hospital and every 24 hours I do from 35 to 40 miles in my ambulance to bring in the wounded.

Women can be just as useful at the front as men. No woman with courage, initiative, and intelligence need fear to drive an ambulance, or do any other work behind the front line of the battle-front.

"Women are not less courageous than men, and in many situations they are more useful."

Mme. Mazzuchi is in this country seeking aid for the work of the Italian ambulance service.

gown, with trimmings of tulle and fringe. Needless to say, a dip in the briny would be fatal to these gowns. The wearers, however, take no chances. They lounge high and dry on the beach sand and never venture into the water. Persons with whom surf bathing does not agree will exchange nearly all the pleasures and none of the discomforts of bathing, by lounging for an hour or two on the beach, clothed in one of these charming gowns.

Thoreau's Teaching

It seems very fitting that the centenary of Henry David Thoreau should come at a time when the country is trying to put into practice the teaching of this man. He sought to awaken us to an appreciation of the superfluity and triviality of the things of civilization—the joy-destroying chase for fine clothes, fine houses, fine society. He was a prophet of simplicity, who took his inspiration from nature. He showed the modern world how many things there are in it that we do not need. He shows us how we fret and fume for the possession of things we do not really want and which would not make us happy if we had them. When Thoreau presented these principles, he was looked upon as an erratic person. Now he is hailed as one of our greatest benefactors, and the little town of Concord, no rich in literary and historical associations, has produced no more brilliant son than he. It is safe to say that as time goes on the philosophy of his teachings will be more and more widely accepted as leading in the pursuit of happiness to which is every man's birthright.

Gingham Dresses

The charming little gingham dresses to be seen in shop windows and on beach promenades are quite the fad. At first glance their childish simplicity suggests wartime economy, but to the initiated it is well known that by the time the gingham is made in up-to-date style, it costs as much as a silk gown, and in the end it is not as practicable, for no matter how much the gingham gown may cost it is not suitable for any dressy occasion.

"Saucer Sailor"

The new saucer sailor is popular just now. The trimming is laid flat on the upturned brim. The style is becoming only to certain faces. If you are of the type of woman who has nursed a grouse so long that every line of your face inclines downward in sympathy with your frowning, by all means invest in a saucer sailor. But, if the lines of your face already incline upward, beware of the saucer sailor, lest you would go about looking like an animated question mark.

Suffrage

It seems to take the anti-suffragists a long time to realize how extremely incompatible is their precept with their example. At the present time they should be in the homes exerting silent influence on their men-folk as to how said men-folk should think on the various large matters—the "bone-dry" clause, war, conservation. Instead, they are attending the constitutional convention, telling the delegates that whatever else they do, they must not again submit the question of equal suffrage to the electorate. In the meantime, let us hope that hubby is saving all the food he can, that he is getting out the old musket and polishing it for service.

LADY LOOKABOUT.

At the recent marriage in Dayton, O., of W. W. Grimes of Cincinnati to Miss Matilda Lukens of Dayton friends of the groom left for the wedding in 15 machines. All wore silk hats and paraded around Cincinnati before starting for Dayton. The autos were decorated to proclaim the reason for the parade and the wearing of silk hats with summer clothing.

COATDRESS AND SHORT, FULL
SKIRTS WILL RULE
THIS FALL

BY BETTY BROWN
NEW YORK.—No man can possibly tell whether one style of woman's fall apparel is a coat or a dress. Advance fall designs are perhaps less confusing than summer models because they are less draped, and more severely tailored.

One of the most attractive of coat dresses for fall is distinguished by a graceful skirt arrangement of side pleats.

First showings of fall fashions indicate a continuance of the rather short and moderately full skirt.

In four minutes and 35 seconds Geo. Rudelle of Philadelphia caught, killed, cleaned and fried a fowl. The feat was accomplished as the result of a wager.

BUILDING PERMITS FOR THE WEEK

BUILDING AND REAL ESTATE NEWS

George Hesson of this city has purchased the three-story block located at the corner of Alken and Cheever streets, bordering the canal. The building extends from 205 to 225 Alken street, and from 67 to 77 Cheever street. The building is now undergoing heavy alterations for which Mr. Hesson will spend several thousand dollars.

As the building stood a few weeks ago it measured 100 ft. by 28 ft. on Alken street and the same on Cheever street. After enlargement it will be 13 feet wider on both sides. There was no cellar in the past, so the first two floors after reconstruction work was begun were arranged on the ground level. Now there is an 8-foot cellar being walled in which will make a new support for the building now resting on temporary bases. The whole structure has been raised two feet to allow for the cellar wall and window space.

The building contains five stories and eighteen tenements. The stores, which formerly had only 8-foot ceilings will now be 11 feet high. They will have all new plate glass fronts. Above these, in the other stories, the tenements will be rearranged into five and six-room suites. Although there will be the same number of tenements as before, they will be larger because of the 13-foot addition to the width. All partitions will be new and the entire interior will have hardwood finish.

Other modern improvements will be included. The exterior will have a new clapboard finish. The change will add considerably to the beauty of this section of the city, making a pretty sight from down Alken street and across the canal bridge. The improvements will be completed in approximately three months.

Building Permits
The following permits for buildings, additions and alterations were issued this week at the office of the inspector of buildings at city hall:

Moses D. and Joseph D. Boucher, 75 Tremont street, will build a three-story house at 73 Lafayette street, measuring 32'x26'. It will contain three apartments of 5 rooms and bath each. There will be a front piazza 6'x32'. Estimated cost $3000.

Idella Norton, 122 Powell street, will make an addition to the rear of the machine shop, mill construction, of wood and with stucco finish, 50' 5'x24' one end and 38' the other end. The addition will necessitate the removal of only one wall where it joins the present building. Cost of construction, $1500.

Fred G. Leary has leased the building at the foot of Howe street belonging to John A. Simpson. He will raise the roof of the rear shed 3 ft. and finish with wire lath and cement plastering, the interior to be fireproof. The installation of a boiler. The second story will be removed in the three-story brick part. All of the door openings in second story will be blocked. Cost of alterations, $400 to $500.

James P. Robinson, Foundry street, will make an addition to the main building on the side of the molding room, the extra space to measure 10'x30', and at a cost of $900.

George M. Foster, 12 Burt street, will erect a one-story house at 786 Stevens street, measuring 30 by 32 ft., at a cost of $2200.

Corn E. Hooker, 417 High st., will make alterations on the house at 50 Parkview ave., renewing the piazzas, using the old roof, but putting in new foundation, flooring and timbers, and laying concrete steps. Cost to be $200. This party will also build a wooden garage 20 by 20 on the premises, at a cost of $300.

R. J. LAVALLEE ACCEPTS NEW POSITION

R. J. Lavallee, of 75 Oershom avenue, and for a number of years employed in the shoe department of A. G. Polard Co., has severed his connection with the company and has accepted the position of contract man and sales agent for Favreau Bros., electrical contractors and dealers in electrical supplies at 989 Lakeview ave.

Owing to the large increase in business and the fact that two members of the firm of Favreau Bros., Urgel and Pierre, have enlisted in Company C, Sixth regiment, M.N.G. and are now at Camp Darling, South Framingham, Mass., the other two members of the firm, A. J. and V. A. Favreau, decided to secure the services of a contract man and sales agent.

Mr. Lavallee is a well known young man, who has lived in this city all his life. He is a member of several organizations among which are Club Lafayette, the C.A.L.A.C., St. Joseph's college alumni and other fraternal and social societies and his many friends predict he will make good in his new line of work.

In entering the employ of Favreau Bros., Mr. Lavallee has joined one of the largest electrical firms of the city. The company was organized some four years ago and since that time marvelous progress has been made. The headquarters of the company was formerly located at 2 Riverview street, but as the business progressed and the quarters became inadequate and a few months ago the young men purchased the large and well appointed Fels house at 553 Lakeview avenue on the Dracut line. Considerable improvements and changes have been made in the building, which has been transformed into a real electrical parlor, where electrical appliances of all descriptions are on exhibition. The spacious stable adjoining the house has been converted into a garage and workshop and is now equipped with the most modern machinery in the electrical line.

Favreau Bros. have now in their employ 11 men, all practical electricians and they are in a position to do any and all kinds of work in their special line. Their specialties are the wiring of houses or business places and there is no job too small or too large for them. They have several big jobs to their credit in this city and surrounding towns, among which are the new St. Louis church in West Sixth street, the large apartment house erected by Bennett, Silverblatt and others at Tyler park, and several hundred buildings, large and small. The company is now busy on wiring the new St. Joseph's church, which is being erected in Malden. The show room of the company at 989 Lakeview avenue is one of the most modern and best fitted in the city. Included in the large stock carried on hand are the Federal electric washing machine, the "Bird" electric vacuum cleaner, electric fans of all descriptions, electric bells, telephones, electric flat irons, batteries, domes for direct and indirect lighting and numerous other electrical devices. The company has a large automobile at the disposal of their clients and a telephone call at 5711 will bring the machine to your door.

INTERIOR VIEW—DINING ROOM

The dining room with its built-in buffet is a strong feature in this design. The arrangement of the drawers and beveled mirror above with the paneled glass doors for china on both sides gives an artistic as well as serviceable buffet. Then the stained art glass adds to the charm. There is a beamed ceiling with lights from the crossings of the beams to match the center lighting fixture and the two lights on the columns of the buffet. There is wainscoting around the room finished to match the rest of the woodwork.

JOHN CONLEY
YOUNG TEXAS LEAGUER IS RIGHT
HANDER TO REACH
10TH CONSECUTIVE VICTORY

Rube Marquard's crown for the consecutive victory record is being disputed and Baxter Sparks' record of 21 consecutive games is in danger of being smashed.

In fact, he claims the record for right handers.

Conley's right hand won him 13 consecutive games this season on the Dallas club, and he is relying on it to hang up a new record for all leagues. Conley came to the Dallas club from the Baltimore Peds. While pitching in an exhibition game with the Baltimore club, he fell and injured his pitching arm. For a year he was unable to use an overhand delivery.

Last year he used nothing but a side-arm motion. He is rapidly regaining his overhand delivery, which has brought him much of his success. He is also a spit baller, with a deceiving change of pace.

The Dallas management recently had an offer for Conley from the Philadelphia Athletics, but refused it. Dallas is hungry for a pennant and so long as Conley is rushing them toward it at a steady pace, the club doesn't want to lose him.

Nearly all the games won were remarkably close. Four were shut outs and in one he allowed no hits, fanned nine men and only one man reached first.

Conley is a young chap and shows signs of remarkable control and intelligence on the mound. He has self confidence, but shows he hasn't an overdone of it.

SPORT CHATTER—BEAMS FROM BIG LEAGUE STARS—THE LOCAL DIAMOND—ATHLETES IN THE WAR

HUGO BEZDEK, JIM CALLAHAN, AND HANS WAGNER.

BARNEY DREYFUSS EMPLOYED THREE MANAGERS IN FOUR DAYS
BY PAUL PURMAN

Three managers in four days, that's an all-time baseball record.

Presidents of baseball clubs are seldom credited with records in the dope books, but this record must be credited to Barney Dreyfuss, president of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

In four days Dreyfuss had three managers in turn piloting his ball club. The first was Jim Callahan, who began that season with the Pirates, the second Honus Wagner, who threw up the job in two days and the third Hugo Bezdek, who deserves credit for his nerve if nothing else.

Bezdek's appointment is more or less of an experiment. Practically unknown to the baseball world, it is a question whether the former Chicago athlete will be able to accomplish what a smart ballplayer like Callahan failed to achieve and the wily and ancient Honus did not care to attempt.

Bezdek has been with the Pirates as a coach and scout. His earlier activities have been generally limited to college athletics, football mainly. In fact he never played professional baseball. The only other managers who come to mind who have not been players are Bill Armour and Branch Rickey.

Football fans will remember Bezdek as the dazzling gridiron star of the Maroons in the early years of this century. His last game was the memorable 2 to 0 defeat of Michigan by Chicago in 1903.

He has since coached college teams, having been with the Oregon university coast champions last year. Jim Callahan is a smart manager. His failure at Pittsburgh cannot be any more ascribed to his deficiencies than to the failure of Dreyfuss to spend money for good ballplayers. Instead of the bush leaguers he has been trying to keep in the race.

Callahan has one great fault. He is inclined to be upstage and in this way fails to gain the confidence of his ballplayers.

This probably was the cause of his failure with the White Sox when he had unlimited money to spend and built up the wonderful pitching staff which included Eddie Cicotte, Mel Wolffgang, Red Faber, Reb Russell and Jim Scott and which added Ray Schatz and Happy Felsch to the club.

Callahan tried hard at Pittsburgh. He had every possible expedient to get a winning club but he couldn't win with the misfits Dreyfuss wished on him.

Wagner's case is different. In the first place he didn't want to play ball this year. He has plenty of money and didn't care to take the trouble to get in shape. His decision to play was merely a concession to his friendship for Dreyfuss.

Wagner is popular in Pittsburgh. By becoming manager of a talented club he realized that he might forfeit his popularity, a sacrifice that even his friendship for Dreyfuss would not counterbalance.

Right now it looks as though Bezdek has a thankless job before him.

FALLS AND LISTON ARE TWO CLEVER PLAYERS

Two players who starred for the Lowell high school baseball team this season are now making good with local semi-professional teams. Liston, who was behind the bat in all games played by the high school team, is doing similar duties for Pitts South Ends. Falls, captain of the school team and one of the best pitchers ever developed here, is playing with the Broadway team.

Liston is a heavy ball player, confident and cool at all times. He is there when it comes to "holding up" a pitcher, and he is "sure death" to prospective base stealers. As a hitter he is a regular "Ty" Cobb. He's an intelligent base runner, and very fast. His presence on a team adds considerable to its strength.

Falls, while a great pitcher, is also a sweet hitter and valuable all-round player. He can catch, play any position in the infield and as a fly chaser in the outer garden he has few superiors in this city. He was the leading schoolboy batter in the Merrimack valley this season. In securing Falls, Manager Desmond undoubtedly signed up the most versatile ball player in Lowell.

A game between the Broadways, representing the North common and the South Ends, representing the South common, would be a corker, and would give fans an opportunity to see these two clever performers in action.

It is estimated that there are 600 professional story-tellers in Tokio, who wander from house to house relating tales. The story teller learns a new set of stories when he finds that the old ones are too well known.

HALF BLIND, CRIPPLED OHIO BOY WANTS TO BECOME PITCHER

With all the examples of nerve in perseverance in baseball there is, perhaps, no more striking example than that of William Forsyth, 15, Fremont, C. boy, who is trying to make a pitcher of himself.

Half blind, Forsyth lost his right eye when a child, and handicapped with a crippled hand, the youth is one of the best amateur pitchers in northern Ohio and hopes to break into professional ball next year.

Forsyth lost his thumb several years ago, but by practice learned to get a firm grip on the ball. He has an assortment of curves and a good change of pace.

Recently he fanned 35 men in two games, holding his opponents to three hits in the first contest, which is pretty good evidence of his control.

JOHN CONLEY

Conley came to the Dallas club from the Baltimore Peds. While pitching in an exhibition game with the Baltimore club, he fell and injured his pitching arm. For a year he was unable to use an overhand delivery.

Last year he used nothing but a side-arm motion. He is rapidly regaining his overhand delivery, which has brought him much of his success. He is also a spit baller, with a deceiving change of pace.

The Dallas management recently had an offer for Conley from the Philadelphia Athletics, but refused it. Dallas is hungry for a pennant and so long as Conley is rushing them toward it at a steady pace, the club doesn't want to lose him.

Nearly all the games won were remarkably close. Four were shut outs and in one he allowed no hits, fanned nine men and only one man reached first.

Have Your Home Wired

OUR SPECIALTY IS THE WIRING OF HOMES. ELECTRICITY IN A HOME SPELLS COMFORT. A HOME WITHOUT ELECTRICITY IS NO HOME.

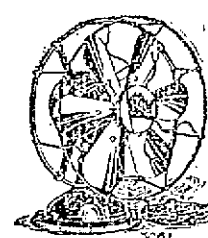

We make a specialty of wiring houses on the installment plan, and this is one of our many plans:

For $4.92 cash and $2.00 a month for 10 months we will wire four rooms—Parlor, Hall, Dining Room and Kitchen—and besides we will furnish suitable fixtures for all the above mentioned apartments without extra cost.

Electric Washing Machine

We have been agents for the Federal Electric Washing Machine for Lowell for the past three years, and during that time we have disposed of several of them, and we are still to hear the first complaint against the machine. The Federal Machine is a great improvement, a money, labor and time saver. All you have to do is press the button and the machine starts. The cylinder revolves in one direction, then in the other, and the dirt can't resist the soapy water which is forced through the clothes. Attached to the machine is also an electric wringer, which wrings both ways. The cost of operating the machine is two cents an hour. A small amount cash and small monthly payments until the sum of $100 has been paid secures the Federal Machine.

Do not delay, call up 5711 and one of our representatives will call and give estimates on all kinds of electrical work.
